DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

2. Claims 32-34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. Claims 32-34 are drawn to functional descriptive material recorded on a propagation medium. The specification, at page 18 lines 20-27 defines computer readable recording medium to include, storage media, optical readable media and carrier waves the claimed computer readable medium encompasses non-statutory subject matter such as carrier waves.

A "signal/carrier wave" embodying functional descriptive material is neither a process nor a product (i.e., a tangible "thing") and therefore does not fall within one of the four statutory classes of 35 USC 101. Rather, "signal" is a form of energy, in absence of any physical structure or tangible material.

Because the full scope of the claim properly read in light of the disclosure encompasses non-statutory subject matter, the claim as a whole is non-statutory. The examiner suggests amending the claim to include the disclosed tangible computer readable media, while at the same time excluding the intangible media such as signals, carrier waves, etc. Any amendment to the claim should commensurate with the corresponding disclosure.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 1-31 are allowed.
4. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance for independent claims 1, 15, 16 and 31. The prior art fails to disclose face recognition outputs final face recognition result from multiple neural networks corresponding eigenpixels and filtered image. These features in combination with other features are not taught by the prior art. Claims 2-14 and 17-30 depend on claims 1, 15, 16 and 31. Therefore are also allowable.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
